MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS. A Decrease of Activity at New York, Accompanied by Higher Prices. NEW YORK, Oct. 20 .- Money on call was easy, with all loans at the close offered at 2 per

Prime mercantile paper, in limited supply; rates

47 @7 per cent. Sterling exchange was dull, with actual business at $4.84 for sixty-day bills and $4.88 for de-

The sales of stocks for the day aggregated 129,-000 shares, including the following: Missouri Pacific, 11,943; Northern Pacific preferred, 9,755; New England, 4,860; Richmond & West Point, 19,950; St. Paul, 5,900; Union Pacific, 3,040; Western Union, 8,356.

The stock market to-day was less active and not so feverish as yesterday, and there was better buying all over the list from commission people, and notwithstanding some realizing sales and raiding by the "bears," the advance inaugurated at the opening met with no serious set-back, and the final figures show material gains throughout the list. The temper of the speculation displayed a marked change at the opening, and, notwithstanding that the interest in transactions was centered in three stocks-Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Richmond & West Point-strength was shown, even in the inactive list. The opening figures were generally from } to } per cent above last night's prices, and Big Four and Union Pacific advanced about a point each in the first hour. The rest of the list followed, but after 11 o'clock the "bears" made their attack, which, however, had a fractional effect only. The bank statement was so unexpectedly good that the "bears" hastily retreated and the list once more moved up in unison, while Richmond & West Point preferred was specially strong. There was no further feature to the trading, and the market closed active and strong at but a shade off from the best figures. The entire active list is higher, and Richmond & West Point preferred rose 14:

and Union Pacific and Oregon Short-line, I per The railroad bond market was dull to-day, but there was a very evenly distributed business and no active features whatever. The sales of all issues aggregated $583,000, but the market, like the share list, showed a much better tone than was noticeable yesterday, and the few important changes are generally in the direction of higher figures. The lowa extension sevens rose 67, to 897. The few declines included Central lowa first certificates, two points. The sales of bonds for the week were $7,412,000, against $6,389,000 for the previous week.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.-There was more doing in wheat to-day, but trading was decidedly local and the market strong. The unexpected again happened to-day. Operators had gone home yesterday prepared for a break in prices to-day, but instead a sharp rally occurred. Immediately from the start a good demand existed, and although there was some trading at to below yesterday's clos-ing, prices responded to the demand, and advanced with some fluctuations 4tc for December and 21c for May. The buying was apparently confined principally to December, which accounted for that future being carried 21c over May. "Shorts" naturally started to cover, and prices were helped along, no doubt, by other buying. The market held the advance, and the closing was 3to higher for December and 11e higher for May than the closing figures yesterday. Speculative trading in corn was on a limited scale, the market ruling quiet and inactive the entire session. There was very little, if any, outside business transacted, and local operators were not disposed to trade to any extent among themselves. The market, on the whole, was quite featureless, and ruled more quiet than for some time past. The opening was about the same as the closing prices of yesterday, after the market ruled duil and neglected. Oats were unchanged and neglected, with no fluctuations worth mentioning. Buyers of mess pork took hold fairly. At the opening offerings were small and the feeling rather bullish. Interest centered in May, and first sales were at 74, advancing 24, declining 4, reacting and closing steady at a small advance over yesterday. Lard was quiet and steady, with no particular pressure being brought to bear. In short-rib sides, the bulk of interest centered in January, but the trading only reached a moderate volume. A steady feeling prevailed and

INDIANAPOLIS MARKETS.

The Trade of the Wesk Disappointing-Fluctuations in Values Few. INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 20.

The trade of the week closing to-day was disappointing. Three rainy days and bad roads, however, were in fault, as seldom are the prospects for a healthy trade more promising than at the present writing. Stocks carried by the retail merchants are generally low, and as a result they buy freely when opportunity offers. Had the weather of the past week been good, doubtless, the volume of trade would have exceeded rather than fell short of expectations. Bills are being paid with commendable promptness, and with an easy money market merchants are cafe in getting further from the shore in their business transactions than at any time in several years past. Farmers will have something to sell on which they can realize ready cash, and will be apt to loosen their purse strings, and in turn business generally will improve. The last week there were but few fluctuations in values. Coffeesroasted grades-are I cent per pound higher than a week ago, and sugars are on a firmer basis. Other staple groceries firm and unchanged. The dry goods men had a quiet week, and there are no new features to the market. The wool market is still sluggish, with no change in prices. An improvement is looked for next month. Druggists are experiencing a good trade; most articles they handle are firm in tone. changes in values being of no importance. The produce markets are moderately active. Receipts of apples are hardly as large, and with this prices have become stronger, but not materially higher, unless it be for the choicest of winter fruit. Good apples are still seiling from the car at 30 to 40 cents per bushel. Potatoes are a shade firmer, on an increasing demand, and lighter arrivals. Poultry is barely steady at quotations, while eggs and fresh butter are readily disposed of at our best quotation. Cranberries are firm and meeting with good sale. Oranges are still in light supply, little desirable fruit being offered. Other markets are featureless.

GRAIN. The local market to-day was in much the same position as on Friday. There was a better attendance on 'Change and more interest shown in the bidding; still, there is large room for improvement. Track bids to-day ruled as

A lady who lectured yesterday, under the auspices of a most prominent and respected local society, set forth anew some of the improved cookery precepts of the time, which do little more in the average housewife's case than make her sigh and wonder why it is so hard to bring actual practice into harmony with the theories of cookery experts. "I have established beyond dispute," said the lady to her audience, "that a family of from four to six persons can, for $1.75 a week, live on the choicest food, if properly prepared." There are plenty of careful house holders who would like to see this delightful state of affairs established in their kitchens. The listener fears that this lecturer's system involves a method of housekeeping which is quite out of the question for the ordinary housekeeper of this day. She certainly does not favor cheap buying. "It is false economy," she says, "to use cheap articles of food, which are generally adul-terated or damaged, and are dear at any price and unsatisfactory, if not dangerous." And, again, "To use low-priced food is not only ex-travagant and foolish, it is criminal, a flagrant violation of the laws of physiology, hygiene and a reckless defiance of disease and death." Very true, indeed. But what about looking out for opportunities for buying good food at low prices? There certainly are such opportunities, and to deny that they exist would be the last straw that would break the back of the poor well on a little money. The grocer at one corner keeps his price almost one-third higher than the grocer at the next corner, and when you have analyzed his goods you will not find them a whit better, or purer, or fresher than the other's. It is simply his way of doing business. There is a great deal in assurance in the grocery business as well as some other kinds of business. And how about reconciling high-priced meats and groceries with $1.75 a week? And then this lady, exalted, as all cookery experts do, the dignity of labor in the kitchen. She protests that she does not want a woman to be a household drudge, but a "home-maker." That is a very charming phrase, but the Listener does not believe that what keeps the majority of our New England housewives away from the fullest personal contact with pots and kettles is any notion about the indignity of labor, but rather the sheer impossibility of performing all that is required of a wife and mother in this generation and devoting themselves to the pots and kettles, and the coal scuttles, and other kitchen arrangements at the same time. It is simply out of the question, unless a woman could succeed in getting up a revolution of her own against all the customs of our life at this epoch, and could simplify domestic institutions to a point quite unknown for a generation past. There are women who are "home-makers" in the good old sense; who do their own work, and keep their parlor in good order at the same time that they do their kitchens, and go to church and keep their children neat and well-dressed, and fulfill in some degree the social requirements of the time. But such home-makers are generally grave-makers for themselves and sometimes for their children. No man has a right to lay a woman under such a tyraphy of toil: no woma has a right to lay herself under it. If she survives it by her own inherent strength and escapes paralysis, she is pretty sure to put the stamp of invalidism upon her children. And she dwarfs her own moral and mental growth at the same time she dwarfs the stature of her children. The Listener doubts whether the slavery of housework has not really a more hideous record behind it than negro slavery on the Southern cotton plantations. It would be very charming, indeed, if bousehold life could be so simplified that a housewife could do all her own work, and not break down her health, and have some time left to catch up with the world, if sivilized people could borrow some lessons from the care-free, easy living gypsies, and could manage to get along with one-tenth of the mere friction of taking care of themselves that we now waste our energies in, and sacrifice none of our cultivation in letting go of it. But that seems to be out of the question. The life that we live, we are in for now. And the genuine home-maker, under such a system, must

Then I hang it in the sun while I wash the next. Then I put it on a marble-top dresser or table, stretch it all out and then pull the edges smooth, all the time striking it with my hand till it sticks to the table. I turn it over and keep repeating the process of stroking till it is dry. If I'm in a hurry I fan it dry, but as a rule I take time, because I am very much attached to the contents of my kerchief-box. Oh dear, no! I wouldn't carry an ironed handkerchief for dress. Anybody can tell it is laundried, but when dried on marble the cold slab seems to roll the threads and you would never think it had been used be-
